Maple Ridge veterinarian Dr. Adrian Walton is caring for this albino python, which was found in very poor health in the woods near Chilliwack this week. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/FOR METRO

Can she slither her way into your heart — and home?

She could be yours. Vet hopes to adopt out giant python, which was found abandoned near Chilliwack

KATE WEBB
kate.webb@metronews.ca

Calling Britney Spears: A Maple Ridge veterinarian has your snake — or at least one just like it.

The two-metre-long female albino python was spotted slithering through the woods near Chilliwack by a family of campers on Monday and brought to Dr. Adrian Walton, who is one of the few veterinarians in the province capable of rescuing such animals.

The albino python, a variety of Burmese python, is one of the six largest snakes in the world. The province passed a law in 2008 prohibiting its sale and requiring existing owners to get a permit, but Walton said more of them are being abandoned because their owners just can't be bothered.

"These animals are inappropriate for 99 per cent of the general public," he said. "They get 18 feet long, weigh 150 pounds and you have to devote an entire room of your house to them, which very few people would do."

Walton said the snake was thin and in very poor health when she was brought in, suffering from anemia and snake mites — a flea-like parasite she could only have contracted in captivity.

"She also had evidence of an abscess on her nose, which is indicative of being kept in a cage that was far too small for her," he said.

The Ministry of Environment and BC SPCA have placed about 20 controlled alien species in Walton's care over the past three years. He has found homes for 15 of them, but had to euthanize the rest because they were simply too big to be adopted.

He hopes that someone knowledgeable about reptiles, with lots of room at home, will come forward to adopt her so she won't have to be put down.

"They're actually really nice snakes. I call them the Great Danes of the snake world," he said, explaining that Burmese pythons are non-venomous and surprisingly gentle.

No ordinary cup of Joe

Joe's Table. Café hires staff 'of all abilities' in memory of its gregarious namesake

MATT KIELTYKA
matt.kieltyka@metronews.ca

Joe's Table is instantly inclusive and welcoming.

The second you step into the small, chic Burnaby café, you're greeted with the earthy, familiar smell of fresh coffee, smiles and a warm welcome written on the wall.

"Hi, how are you? My name is Joseph. What is your name?"

It was Joseph Chung's trademark hello, one the autistic man used dozens of times a day to meet new people and coax out smiles.

This was supposed to be his coffee shop: A place where he could work, greet customers and defy the notion that his disability somehow made him a less productive member of society.

Unfortunately, Chung died at age 32 last year before his parents' dream could become a reality.

Yet Joe's Table is open today — it's celebrating a ribbon cutting with high-profile dignitaries on Monday — his hope of inclusivity as strong as ever.

That's because the small shop at 5021 Kingsway prides itself on hiring people "of all abilities" and operates as a non-profit organization intent on making life better for people with disabilities.

"Joe made so many people smile. Our family is very close because of him. Joe's Table is our tribute to him," said Joseph's father, Peter Chung.

Misconceptions

"(Employers) assume things like they're not capable.... How can you say that when you haven't even met the person?"

Amanda Kim, employment specialist with posAbilities, which works with Joe's Table

"We're working to show people with different abilities can work there and be productive. I hope it sets an example to other business people to do the same."

About 20 per cent of Joe's Table staff has some type of disability.

Amanda Kim, an employment specialist with posAbilities, has two clients who were hired by the café.

She spent Thursday at the shop seeing how 27-year-old rookie barista Frances Cooper was fitting in.

"Joe's Table is great in that they recognize the need to hire people with disabilities," said Kim. "And it's not just jobs like sweeping the floor or wiping the table. Frances is a barista; she's like everyone else here. She just fit in naturally with the team."

Cooper says her decision to work at Joe's was an easy one.

"Because I like coffee," Cooper said, with a contagious laugh. "I always drink coffee at home and make coffee for my dad."

And she whips up lattes like a pro.

Firefighters punished for sending box of tampons to PoCo fire dept.

Sexist burn. Chief says young culprits have been disciplined after prank following hiring of female employees

kate.webb@metronews.ca

Two Vancouver firefighters have been reprimanded for sending a package containing a box of tampons and recipes from women's magazines to the Port Coquitlam fire department, after it hired its first female members in more than a decade.

The package was sent a few weeks ago and addressed to a male friend of the senders who works in the PoCo department, but was intercepted before it got to him.

Vancouver Fire Chief John McKearney said the sexist prank was completely unacceptable, and the pair have both had letters of discipline put in their files.

"When it was brought to my attention, I did an investigation, the two members came forward, and they went through a disciplinary hearing before a panel of chief officers, and they were subsequently disciplined," McKearney said Thursday.

"It was a stupid, ignorant prank, but they took full responsibility. Both members are young members in our organization.... They just didn't think. They didn't even stop to think how this would affect members in both organizations and our citizens and especially our women firefighters."

He added that both culprits are "terrific individuals" and said the act was "totally out of character" for them.

Gord Ditchburn, president of the union that represents Vancouver firefighters, agreed with McKearney and said the Port Coquitlam fire department has accepted an apology from those responsible.

"These two individuals have been model employees over the years and it was an incredibly stupid lack of judgment, and they regret this," he said. "We do a tremendous amount of work to make sure that our workplace is very respectful."

UBC student's death in L.A. an accident: Coroner

Uncertain at first. When the 21-year-old student's body was found last February in a water cistern, police called her death suspicious

Elisa Lam's death was been ruled an accident by an L.A. coroner. HANDOUT/METRO FILE

A coroner has concluded a University of British Columbia student travelling in Los Angeles died in a water tower atop her hotel in an accident earlier this year.

Lt. Fred Corral, of the L.A. County Coroner's Office, says Elisa Lam's death was in part due to her bipolar disorder.

"Cause of death is listed as an accidental death due to drowning and other significant conditions: bipolar disorder."

Corral said in an interview Thursday that the woman's family has been alerted and the case has been closed.

When the 21-year-old student's body was found last February in a water cistern on top of the 600-room hotel near Skid Row, police called her death suspicious.

Before she died, hotel surveillance footage showed her inside an elevator pushing buttons and sticking her head out the doors as if she were looking for someone.

Her body was discovered by a maintenance worker after guests complained about low water pressure, though later testing of the water found no contamination.

An autopsy after Lam's death was inconclusive, so officials said they would have to wait for toxicological tests.

Lam travelled alone to Los Angeles on Jan. 26 and was last seen five days later by hotel workers.

Licensing. Red tape gets cut for contractors working across city boundaries

It's about to get a whole lot easier for contractors to jump between jobs in Vancouver, Richmond, Burnaby, New Westminster, Delta and Surrey.

Vancouver city council will vote on a mobile-business-licence pilot program next week that would allow construction professionals and tradespeople to operate between municipalities with just one licence priced at $250.

As it stands, contractors need a separate licence for each region.

"The new multi-city business licence follows through on our commitment to reduce red tape and support small businesses in Vancouver's growing economy," Mayor Gregor Robertson said in a statement.

If passed, the pilot program will reduce headaches and paperwork for both contractors and municipal employees from October 2013 until at least December 2015.

Creating an inter-municipal licence was a top priority this year for the Vancouver Board of Trade, which worked alongside the city on the licence model with the Vancouver Economic Commission and the province. The program will save businesses money and let them expand to new markets, according to the board's January newsletter.

Similar agreements exist between North and West Vancouver, the Okanagan-Similkameen region and the Lake Cowichan area. The licence system also applies to mechanics, caterers and photographers.

St. Paul's. Hospital moves to incorporate aboriginal health care

St. Paul's Hospital has created a space for smudging and pipe ceremonies in an effort to provide traditional health care for Vancouver's aboriginal population.

Providence Health Care says a ventilation system has been installed to allow the ceremonies in which cedar, tobacco, sage and sweetgrass are burned in an abalone shell and wafted with an eagle feather.

In aboriginal culture, smudging ceremonies are thought to provide clarity and cleansing.

An open house on Friday will showcase the All Nations Sacred Space, featuring a Coast Salish-designed rug, semi-circular benches to represent a non-hierarchical environment and cedar-effect flooring.

Aboriginal patients will be connected with elders as part of their health-care needs.

Teen sentenced in fire prank

A teenager who videotaped a man being set on fire in a prank at a Kelowna house party has been sentenced to nine months in jail.

But Joshua McWhirter walked out of court Thursday after serving six and a half months in custody and getting two and a half months' credit for time served.

The 18-year-old victim suffered severe burns to his back and buttocks when aftershave was poured on him and he was set ablaze last December.

18 suspected. Union defends employees put on paid leave amid investigation

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

BC Hydro is investigating 18 employees for the alleged theft of equipment and other activities related to illegal marijuana grow-ops, which the union has called a "witch hunt."

The employees, based across the province, have been sent home with pay pending the results of the probe, according to Local 258 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The union doesn't condone any illegal activity by its members but maintains the workers were just doing their jobs, according to a statement from the union's business manager Doug McKay.

"It's not a lineman's job to knock on doors and inquire whether a grow-op is inside. That's the job of the police," McKay said. "Our members don't deserve to have this cloud of suspicion hanging over them."

The union was notified of the investigation on Tuesday. Sitting in on the meetings, McKay said BC Hydro had "more questions than hard evidence."

BC Hydro will not reveal many details regarding the internal investigation because it is a personnel matter, but it did confirm it is looking into activities that may violate its code of conduct, according to an email statement from spokeswoman Simi Heer.

"BC Hydro and its employees take the safety, reliability and security of our system very seriously," the statement reads. "We need to ensure the conduct of a small number of individuals is not affecting the safety and security of the public or our employees."

Man gets 36 to life in the blink of an eye

National attention. Victim blinked in response to questions about who shot him in video interview two weeks before his death

A man paralyzed and hooked up to a ventilator after he was shot in the face and neck could only communicate by blinking his eyes, but those blinks helped lead to what could end up as life in prison for the man convicted of murdering him.

Ricardo Woods, 35, was sentenced Thursday to 36 years to life in prison for the murder of David Chandler.

The murder trial drew national attention when the judge allowed jurors to see a police interview of Chandler two weeks before his death.

Prosecutors say Chandler blinked his eyes three times for "yes" to identify a photo of Woods as the man who shot him. The defence tried to block the video, saying Chandler's blinks were inconsistent and unreliable.

Woods showed no visible emotion as the judge sentenced him Thursday.

Canada's promise put off

Pledge to resettle Iraqi refugees delayed until 2015

Syrian refugees take down their belongings on World Refugee Day at Zaatari refugee camp in Jordan on Thursday. MOHAMMAD HANNON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Immigration Minister Jason Kenney says Canada's promise to resettle 20,000 Iraqi refugees will be met by 2015 — two years later than originally planned.

Kenney made the resettlement of Iraqis a focus in 2009 and had initially set this year as the target date to resettle thousands fleeing persecution and violence in that country.

But the ongoing conflict in Syria forced the government to close its visa office in Damascus in 2012, which dramatically slowed down the Iraqi program.

Kenney says around 16,000 Iraqis have now arrived and the entire group will be resettled by 2015.

By 2018, they will be joined by some 5,000 Iranian and other Iraqi refugees currently in Turkey.

Focusing on targeted populations for resettlement is set to become the norm for Canada's refugee program, which is in the midst of a major overhaul. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unite to help end Syrian civil war: Jolie

UN special envoy. Angelina Jolie urges leaders to make Syria diplomacy work

Angelina Jolie said Thursday the Syrian civil war is the world's most acute humanitarian crisis and called on world leaders to make diplomatic efforts to end it succeed.

Jolie spoke at Jordan's largest camp for Syrian refugees, which she toured as special envoy for the United Nations refugee agency.

"I appeal to the world leaders — please, set aside your differences, unite to end the violence, and make diplomacy succeed," she told reporters, drawing attention to the U.N.'s World Refugee Day.

Jolie is returning to her humanitarian work after announcing last month that she had her breasts removed after discovering she has an inherited genetic mutation that puts her at high risk of breast and ovarian cancer.

Her visit to the camp was her first visit public appearance with the United Nations refugee agency since the double mastectomy. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Call to action

- The actress said that by the end of this year, "half of Syria's population — 10 million people — will be in desperate need of food, shelter and assistance."

European Union. Germany blocks EU talks with Turkey over protests

Germany has blocked the next step in the European Union's membership talks with Turkey over Ankara's crackdown on anti-government protests, a diplomat from an EU nation said Thursday.

Berlin blocked the decision to open a new chapter in the long-running accession talks because "there are still open questions," said the diplomat.

The decision comes as a blow to Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan's Turkish government, which faces increasing international scrutiny over its crackdown on several weeks of protests in Istanbul and other cities. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A third of women suffer domestic violence: WHO

Report. Assault by an intimate partner found to be the most common kind of violence experienced by women

About a third of women worldwide have been physically or sexually assaulted by a former or current partner, according to the first major review of violence against women.

In a series of papers released Thursday by the World Health Organization and others, experts estimated nearly 40 per cent of women killed worldwide were slain by an intimate partner. Being assaulted by a partner was the most common kind of violence experienced by women.

WHO defined physical violence as being slapped, pushed, punched, choked or attacked with a weapon. Sexual violence was defined as being physically forced to have sex, having sex because you were afraid of what your partner might do and being compelled to do something sexual that was humiliating or degrading.

The report also examined rates of sexual violence against women by someone other than a partner and found about seven per cent of women worldwide had previously been a victim.

In conjunction with the report, WHO issued guidelines for authorities to spot problems earlier and said all health workers should be trained to recognize when women may be at risk and how to respond appropriately.

Floods ravage southern Alberta

Mass exodus. Tens of thousands could be evacuated as rescue teams search for stranded victims

Torrential rains and widespread flooding throughout southern Alberta on Thursday washed out roads and bridges, sent residents scurrying for safety and delivered surreal scenes of cars, couches and refrigerators just floating away.

The RCMP put out a call for help to the Canadian Armed Forces, which sent in two helicopters and a Hercules aircraft to help extract people stranded by water.

Officials with the City of Calgary said as many as 100,000 people in low-lying neighbourhoods could be forced from their homes due to heavy flooding, an evacuation that would take place in stages over the next few days.

Bruce Burrell, director of the Calgary Emergency Management Agency, said water levels on the Bow River aren't expected to subside until Saturday afternoon. "Depending on the extent of flooding we experience overnight, there may be areas of the city where people are not going to be able to get into until the weekend," he told a news conference.

There were flashpoints of chaos from Banff and Canmore and Crowsnest Pass in the Rockies to Calgary and beyond in the north and south to Lethbridge.

The Bow River Basin was battered with up to 100 millimetres of rain. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rainfall warning

The province reported that 12 communities were under states of emergency.

- Environment Canada issued a rainfall warning for the affected areas, estimating as much as 100 millimetres more rain could fall in the next two days.

STARS search for missing Albertans

One of two people believed to have been swept away by floodwaters on the swollen Highwood River was rescued on Thursday afternoon, but the other was still missing, according to STARS air ambulance.

Spokesman Cam Heke said a third-party "non-STARS helicopter" was able to rescue a man atop a trailer floating in the river.

Earlier in the day, rising waters swept away a house trailer near Black Diamond. It's believed two people were inside.

"STARS was requested to aid in a search-and-rescue effort after reports of two adults going missing following the capsizing of that trailer," Heke said. METRO

Obama mistakes chancellor for soul singer

Politics can be hard on the ego, as British Treasury chief George Osborne learned when President Barack Obama apparently forgot his name at this week's G8 summit. Britain's Sun and Financial Times newspapers reported Thursday that Obama repeatedly referred to the Chancellor of the Exchequer as "Jeffrey" — and later apologized, saying he had been thinking of soul singer Jeffrey Osborne.

Going to see World War Z this weekend? Cineplex will soon start selling the SuperTicket, a hybrid of both movie admission and a digital download of the same film. JAAP BUITENDIJK/PARAMOUNT PICTURES

New Cineplex ticket lets you download film later

Movies. Deal with major studios means theatre patrons can pre-order digital copy

Quoted

"I'm convinced that by the end of the summer, we will have at least, if not all of them, 95 per cent of them."

Cineplex president and chief executive Ellis Jacob, speaking about major movie studios signing on.

Canadians who would like to own the films they've just seen at the theatre will soon have a chance to double-up at the box office, as part of an agreement between Cineplex Inc. and several major Hollywood studios.

The country's largest theatre chain is about to launch SuperTicket, a hybrid of both a movie admission and digital download of the same film.

When movie-watchers buy their Cineplex ticket either online or at the box office, they'll also have the option to pre-order a digital copy of the same film. The online version will become available to them around the time it's headed to DVD.

The digital copies will be in UltraViolet, which allows sharing of the digital downloads on multiple devices such as desktop, laptop and tablet computers or smartphones.

Cineplex says it's a first for the movie industry, which has been looking for new ways to boost sales of home entertainment, as the popularity of physical media begins to fade.

Bleak outlook. Canadian youth face chronic unemployment

A new report says Canadian youth face the risk of chronic unemployment despite being more educated than ever.

The report by CIBC says a lack of summer jobs and part-time work makes it difficult for youth to gain the experience necessary for permanent positions.

About 420,000 youth aged 15 to 24, or nearly one in 10 young Canadians, are neither employed nor enrolled in school. CIBC deputy chief economist Benjamin Tal, the study's author, says these youth likely do not have the skills necessary to compete in the labour market and could remain chronically unemployed.

The report suggests combining education and work-related training to help youth find jobs while in school.

Welcome to the Metro List, the nation's foremost source for the week's best stories. Not the top ones — the best ones. Trust me.

THE METRO LIST

Paul Sullivan

1 Tony Soprano fades to black. The great James Gandolfini, who revolutionized television as Tony Soprano, everybody's favourite Mafioso, dies Wednesday of a massive heart attack at 51. Now we'll never know what happened after the infamous last episode, as a sequel without the greatest character since King Lear is unthinkable.

2 Bob Rae fades to grey. The man who never quite succeeds, whether he's the premier of Ontario or the interim leader of the federal Liberals, decides to call it a day and retires from Parliament to not quite succeed … at something else.

3 Now you tell us. The head of Exodus International, an "ex-gay ministry" charged with the holy mission of curing homosexuals, abruptly shuts down his 200 ministries with an apology to gays: "You have never been my enemy," says president Alan Chambers. "I am very sorry that I have been yours." Oh, and those "on-going same-sex attractions"? He now accepts them as part of his life "that will likely always be there."

4 Just when we lose one disease, another one pops up. The American Medical Association declares obesity a disease. It's obviously contagious: more than one-third of Americans are now obese. Here's the good news. There's a surefire cure, but it doesn't come with fries.

5 Another disease? This one is called "poverty." According to one study, 50 per cent of aboriginal children live below the poverty line. According to another study, there are 30,000 people across Canada who will spend the night homeless or in a homeless shelter. According to the first study it will cost $7.5 billion a year to bring all children up to the poverty line. According to the second, homelessness has a $7-billion-a-year price tag. Are you thinking what I'm thinking? Eliminate homelessness and child poverty disappears.

6 A different kind of poverty. The Donald turns up in Vancouver and announces the development of the Trump Vancouver, a $500-million, 63-storey luxury hotel, condo development and spa, the second Trump spire in Canada, just a polite smidge shorter than the one in Toronto. Champagne was served.

7 We knew it. Another day, another study. Turns out 15 per cent of men don't wash their hands after going to the bathroom. Of those who do, only half use soap. That means your chances of shaking hands with some guy who didn't wash after relieving himself are perilously high. Of course, women are infinitely more civilized: only five per cent don't wash up and of those who do, 78 per cent use soap. Men are potting soil. Men are plaque.

8 Bieberwatch. Speaking of potting soil, Justin Bieber runs over a photographer while leaving a nightclub in his white Ferrari. Neither the car nor the paparazzo were damaged. Bieber was already damaged goods.

NASA shows how lush our Earth is

Scientists have collected a year's worth of satellite observations to create a series of images showing the entire world's vegetation.

NASA spent 12 months gathering data from its Suomi National Polar-orbiting Partnership satellite to reveal the stark contrasts between lush, green and dry, arid regions of Earth.

NASA's Suomi NPP measures plant growth, vegetation cover and biomass production from satellite information. It is calculated from the visible and near-infrared light reflected by vegetation. The data is also used to measure cloud and aerosol properties, ocean colour, sea and land surface temperature, ice motion, fires and the planet's albedo (reflected sunlight).

METRO

"Although 75 per cent of the planet is a relatively unchanging ocean of blue, the remaining 25 per cent of Earth's surface is a dynamic green," says NASA. The space agency's data can also be for environmental monitoring, weather prediction models and drought forecasts. NASA/NOAA

Synopsis

After making a pancake breakfast for his wife (The Killing's Mireille Enos) and two kids (Sterling Jerins and Abigail Hargrove), ex United Nations investigator Gerry Lane (Pitt) drives his family to school and right into the middle of the zombie apocalypse. Drawing on his years of experience in war zones he navigates them to safety before he embarks on a mission to find patient-zombie zero and a cure for the virus that has turned most of the world's population into "Zekes."

Zombie film needs life

World War Z.
Brad-Pitt-helmed apocalyptic thriller a victim of dim lighting and lacklustre action

Richard: Mark, I like zombie movies. I also like Brad Pitt, so I'm disappointed that World War Z feels a bit dead on its feet. It has several thrilling scenes — the zombie hordes crawling over one another to scale a giant wall is really cool — but it doesn't even have the oomph of an episode of The Walking Dead. I know zombie apocalypses happen in dimly lit places, but the low light in the first hour of the movie makes it almost impossible to see Brad laying a whooping on the undead, which is the whole reason you buy a ticket to a movie like this.

Mark: Richard, low light means less makeup for the aging Mr. Pitt. But I liked this movie, and I'm not a fan of zombie flicks. The movie reminded me of Contagion but with corporeal viruses that you could actually see. The gore is tasteful, which not everybody will like, but it meant I could concentrate on the story and Pitt's haircut. But you're right about the low light. At times I thought I was watching a grad thesis from the Canadian Film Centre.

RC: The "aging" Mr. Pitt still looks better than I do on my best day, low light or not. My problem with it had more to do with not be able to see what was going on. This is a 3D action movie that actively tries to not show you all three dimensions of a good chunk of the action. It builds some atmosphere, but anyone with any braaaaains would have turned up the lights. On the other hand an exciting scene on an airplane really shows what a horror it is to fly in economy class.

MB: Ha! That was one of the good scenes, as was the entire Israel sequence, which I think was making a sly point about the limitations of a fortress-state. The long scene in the research facility felt like an exercise in taut, old-fashioned moviemaking, and the opening chase on the highway was harrowing and involving. But let's talk about the real stars of the picture: the zombies. They moved fast, which I liked, and often as a mass, frighteningly, by the thousands, creating an indelible image of a foe that may not just be zombies, but communists.

RC: It's just that the movie doesn't offer up any really great zombie one-on-one head splitting action à la The Walking Dead or great characters. One or the other would have breathed some life into this movie.

MB: Outside of Pitt, none of the characters really stick out, with one exception: David Morse's cameo as a turncoat CIA agent. Scarier than the zombies.

The Bling Ring

Director. Sofia Coppola

Stars. Emma Watson, Israel Broussard

There's nothing quite like a Sofia Coppola directed flick. Her latest, the based-on-fact The Bling Ring is ripe with her bright, breezy, sensual style, charting as it does the days and nights in the lives of a gaggle of spoiled, empty rich kids obsessed enough by celebrity that they stalk and then rob the homes of the glitterati. Gently riffing on just how dour our social-network-damaged, empty-calorie-obsessed society has become, the movie almost plays like a horror film, albeit one laced with pummelling electro-pop music. A work of serious pop art.

Fill the Void

Director. Rama Burshtein

Stars. Hadas Yaron, Yiftach Klein, Irit Sheleg

Burshtein's award winning film set in Tel Aviv's ultra-Orthodox Hasidic community concerns an 18-year-old pressured to marry her late sister's husband. A perfect storm of tradition, law and the Rabbi's wishes conspires to rip away any hope of a self-determined life. Although Shira appears to have a choice in the matter she is obliged to abide by the family's requirements. The performances are subtle and powerful, underscoring that doubt and pain that lie beneath submissive exteriors.

Monsters University

Director. Dan Scanlon

Stars. Billy Crystal, John Goodman

With films like Wall-E and Ratatouille, Pixar became as known for developing thoughtful, streamlined family fare as it did for animation advancements, but Monsters University shows these pioneers could be losing their sharpness. A prequel to 2001's Monsters, Inc., the standard storyline follows unassuming eyeball Mike Wachowski as he struggles to succeed in the schooling of scaring kiddies. Sure, it's fun and froth for the preteen set but the film's simplified formula simply falls flat against Pixar's best work. STEVE GOW

Much Ado About Nothing

Director. Joss Whedon

Stars. Amy Acker, Alexis Denishof

Those who recognize Joss Whedon mainly as the magical man in charge of The Avengers should walk into Much Ado About Nothing restraining any bombastic expectation. Filmed in black and white at his own mansion with little-known actors/friends, this low-budget adaptation of Shakespeare's comedic romance about two pairs of lovers with varied perspectives on love may fascinate fans of the Bard's prominent prose much more than the comic-book convention crowd.

Pitt gets political

"I was interested in a political film using zombies as an excuse. I used them like the Trojan horse to ask questions like: What would happen with social or political aspects, if the world suffered a pandemic illness? Who would be the powerful countries and who would be the most vulnerable?"

Surf's up and in 3D

Storm Surfers.
Who's afraid of a big bad wave? Not legendary surfer Ross Clarke-Jones

scene@metronews.ca

For Ross Clarke-Jones, travelling all over the world to promote your movie does have its disadvantages — although they're pretty mild.

"My watch actually broke down so I have no idea what time it is," admitted the legendary Australian surfer on the phone from Italy.

While an uncertainty of time is surely an inconvenience, Clarke-Jones isn't really bothered. Instead he's more distracted by the global attention that his movie Storm Surfers 3D is receiving. "It's amazing to see how many different people (enjoy the movie) which is so cool … you don't have to be into surfing or even speak English."

An acclaimed exploration into Clarke-Jones's quest (along with two-time champion Tom Carroll) to seek out and surf the biggest waves in the ocean, audiences are treated to state-of-the art 3D footage — including stunning visuals from cameras in the water and mounted on surfboards.

"I've never been a fan of 3D myself," said Clarke-Jones. "(But this film's) won awards for a reason because 3D was finally used for something that was worthy instead of an effect. Someone made a comment that James Cameron has finally made a surf movie but there's no CGI in it. That was pretty cool."

A pioneer of tow-surfing, Clarke-Jones is renowned for tackling mammoth mid-ocean waves and even admits he'd rather take on a 90-foot swell (which he did in 1998) than even moderate surf.

"It's just the speed and the power. I enjoy going fast and I enjoy powerful, violent things," said the legendary surfer, adding that conquering such a mammoth swell was indeed bittersweet.

Not just a surf movie

Storm Surfers explores the friendship between Clarke-Jones and Tom Carroll. "I think it helps humanize the thing," said Clarke-Jones. "Some people will find (the surf footage) too unbelievable and untouchable but when you're put in there with Tom and I it helps the audience get on board."

Can the summer handle all that White House?

White House Down.
Independence Day director didn't get a chance to decimate America's house of power this time

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Maybe it's because he's best known for blowing up the White House in Independence Day, but when director Roland Emmerich turned to the West Wing for help in making White House Down — his new film about the White House overrun by terrorists — he got the cold shoulder.

"We applied for shooting permits and were denied," Emmerich says with a laugh. "I don't know why, it's strange."

If the plot sounds familiar, it may be because there has already been one movie about terrorists taking over the White House this year. Given the success Olympus Has Fallen has already enjoyed, is Emmerich worried about comparisons?

"No, not really worried. I mean, maybe a little bit because naturally I would've been much happier being the first out, but also I didn't want them to rush it," he says.

"I'm not terribly concerned. Hopefully it will work. We'll see June 28 if this will go over nicely."

The fact that there are two White House takeover movies so close to each other is a total coincidence, Emmerich insists.

"I had a White House project with Sony for 10, 15 years, and it never came together for several reasons. And so when they bought this spec script by Jamie Vanderbilt, they immediately thought of me and sent it to me the same day they bought it," he says, explaining that work started very quickly on his new project.

"And then all of a sudden people said, 'There's another movie,' and I said, 'Really?' And then I was so deep into it I couldn't really get out of it. And I also didn't want to."

Susan Lucci maid to make 'em laugh and be devious

Devious Maids. Multi-faceted actress looking forward to being part of new show that follows the lives of five Hispanic house servants

For decades, audiences knew her as a dramatic — some may even say melodramatic — soap actress, but there is another side to Susan Lucci.

"She is so hysterically funny, and I think that is something really new and interesting because I don't think people have seen her be this funny and this free," says Ana Ortiz, who stars with Lucci on the new Lifetime series Devious Maids.

"I used to look at people on film doing comedy and my hat goes off to them," says Lucci. "'How do they do that with so many takes, so many bits and pieces?' I already had so much respect for them."

Premiering this Sunday, the series follows five Hispanic maids who work for some of the wealthiest and most powerful families in Beverly Hills. As the season is unveiled, the maids show they can be as devilish, scheming and witty as their employers.

Devious Maids is executive produced by Eva Longoria and Marc Cherry — the man who also created Desperate Housewives.

"Just the name Marc Cherry. 'Marc Cherry has a new show? Yes, I would like to be a part of that.' Then, when I read the script it was a page turner," says Lucci, who plays one of the high-society mavens. "There are hilarious aspects and then there are intriguing things: the twists, the turns, the surprises. He does them so well.

"All the characters," says Lucci, "are fully realized characters. There is not one cardboard, cartoon in the entire group."

"There is funny, heart, drama and sex," adds Ortiz, who played Hilda Suarez on Ugly Betty. It, like Devious Maids, was based on a successful Spanish-language TV show that aired in Latin and South America. "I have had good luck with these novellas-turned-American shows. For me it was a no-brainer.

There is, for lack of a better term, a real upstairs/downstairs quality that I think people are really tuning into right now," says Ortiz. "It's the two worlds colliding." METRO

Controversy

Criticism. While it hasn't officially aired yet, Devious Maids has already faced criticism for its portrayal of Hispanic women as servants, criticism that Eva Longoria, who executive produces the series with Marc Cherry, takes exception to.

Response. "You are telling me their stories aren't worth telling, that maids are not complex, that they don't have a life, that they don't have a story to tell? They do," Longoria says, who adds mothers who worked as maids have raised many successful Hispanic people in the U.S. "With the demographic of the United States changing rapidly we should represent our diverse country on television."

After tragedies, time, Rogue Wave rolls back in

New album. Zach Schwartz talks about how they've gotten through the ebbs and flows of life

NOLAN GAWRON
Metro World News

After taking some time off between Rogue Wave records, Zach Schwartz (a.k.a Zach Rogue) and company are back on tour supporting their recent LP Nightingale Floors, their fifth full-length album, and the first on Vagrant Records.

"I needed a break in general, you know — from everything," says Schwartz. "Just being on the road with Permalight — to play those songs live was not easy to do and it didn't seem to sound like us. I didn't like the trajectory of where we were going live and I had to take some time away and get some perspective. I did this band called Release the Sunbird and I also scored a TV show for HBO (On Freddie Roach.) I think both of those experiences are what led me to make Nightingale Floors."

Permalight, Rogue Wave's 2010 release, was seen by many to be a marked departure from the band's signature sound — including Schwartz himself.

"Everything is a reaction to something else," he says. "We started to do Permalight and I had all of these physical problems where I couldn't move my body and I had lost feeling in my hand, so I felt that I wasn't able to do any playing. At the time I wanted to make really rhythmic dance-beat music because I was excited to just be playing again. The problem is we are not really a dancey band. It's great, but it's not great for us. We're supposed to be a little more loose — that's our sound — and it ebbs and flows. We don't have perfection; we have expression. It was an experiment and I'm glad we did it, but I think Nightingale Floors is much closer to how we play."

Schwartz says his hand hasn't totally healed, but he's feeling better.

"I try and bandage it. It's not as bad as it was, which was great. There's some things; my hand is still numb, but I've learned to deal with that and I'm not bedridden. Well, not yet," he says.

Together with longtime collaborator Pat Spurgeon, Rogue Wave are back to that summertime sound that has come to define the band's catalogue. But look deeper and you'll realize that the poppy hooks and inherent hopefulness that ease into their breezy melodic instrumentation often mask the melancholy of the lyrics that lurk underneath their swooning harmonies. No strangers to bad luck and tragedy, besides his own personal health problems, Rogue lost his friend and former bassist Evan Farrell in complications following a house fire, and Spurgeon almost lost his life from kidney failure.

"These are songs about letting go of the past and trying to have control over things that you can never, ever control," says Schwartz. "You can't control the fact that you're going to die. Everyone you know is going to, and all you can do is just accept it and really live."

'A quilty, salady band'

On the core of the band and working together.

- Quote. "It's always about me and Pat, ever since we met. Either we're on parallel (levels) or if I'm doing a vocal track he's on some weird instrument tracking onto his computer or 4-track machine. We pull all the tracks together we like and mix them up ... like salad. We're a salad band. A quilty, salady band," said Zach Schwartz.

Radcliffe: Doctor Who? Not Doctor Me!

With the search underway for a new Doctor Who, at least one British actor is scratching his own name off the list.

"I've done one iconic character, that might be enough," Daniel Radcliffe tells the Sun newspaper.

And speaking of iconic British characters, Radcliffe also insists he'll never be considered to take over playing James Bond due to his small stature, but that doesn't mean he's not interested in taking part in the franchise.

"I would make a much better villain than Bone," he says. "I am not nearly strapping enough to play Bond."

Katie Holmes focused less on dating, more on Suri

A year after her split from Tom Cruise, Katie Holmes is struggling to adjust to life as a single mom — and has put her love life on hold, according to People magazine.

"She had the courage to leave and take control of her life. Things have been tough for her, but she's happy," a source tells the magazine.

"She's lying low on the romantic side of things. She doesn't need that right now.

Armie Hammer got knifed during sex?

Well, here's a celebrity story you don't hear every day: Armie Hammer, the actor from The Social Network and the new Lone Ranger movie, once had a knife pulled on him during sex.

"One chick tried to stab me when we were having sex. I should so not be telling this story. She was like, 'True love leaves scars. You don't have any.' And then she tried to stab me with a butcher knife. Of course I promptly broke up with her — seven months later," he tells Elle magazine in a new interview.

Funny. I had no idea Armie Hammer and Amanda Bynes ever dated, did you?

Maybe Justin Bieber's on-again, off-again relationship with Selena Gomez won't be going on again anymore, as Gomez has reportedly moved on with British singer-songwriter Ed Sheeran," according to Us Weekly.

"They are hooking up," a source tells the magazine. "She got sick of having to take care of Justin like he was her child. This is a nice escape from the drama."

The belle of Bordeaux

When you think of French wines, what place first comes to mind? I asked a cross section of wine lovers (OK, my drinking buddies) and they all came up with the same thing: Bordeaux.

Bordeaux is the original home of grape kings like Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot, along with some of the most gorgeous real estate in the wine world. This region is where the château hits the fan.

I recently had a chance to tour Château Mouton Rothschild, one of the classiest wine estates in France and the home of its famous red with the prestigious First Growth status.

That kind of wine comes with a price. A recent vintage of Mouton will set you back more than $1,000. But there's more to the winery than their superstar bottle. It also makes Mouton Cadet, a pair of wines (red and white) that have been shipped to Canada for decades. Though the region is red wine territory, its whites are true undiscovered gems. The 2011 Mouton Cadet Blanc ($12.99 to $15.99) is fresh and bright with a light citrus expression that works wonders with a seafood menu. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Celebration of cultures, contributions

CHRIS EDWARDS
For Metro

Friday is National Aboriginal Day, a celebration of all Aboriginal cultures in Canada, and of the contributions those cultures make to this country today.

Recognizing the heritage of First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples, it is a learning experience for all of us. It's a lot of fun, too.

National Aboriginal Day was first celebrated June 21, 1996, having been proclaimed the week before by then governor general Roméo LeBlanc. The date was meaningful — June 21 marks the summer solstice, the longest day of the year, one recognized with festivals in many Aboriginal societies. The National Indian Brotherhood (now the Assembly of First Nations) had called for formal recognition of the date nearly 15 years before.

Today, National Aboriginal Day events are held across the country, open to all.

This year's list includes family-friendly events like pancake breakfasts, games, art and museum displays, powwows and more, in communities as far-flung as Regina, New Westminster, B.C., Montreal, and Thunder Bay, Ont.

To learn about events near you, visit the Aboriginal Affairs and Northern Development Canada website at aandc-aadnc.gc.ca.

And keep checking back to the website — new events will be added regularly.

Examining stereotypes

RAFIQUE BHUIYAN
For Metro

First Nations University of Canada student Rafique Bhuiyan, left, and John Legimodiere, an instructor at the university. CONTRIBUTED

(Editor's note: First Nations University of Canada in Regina offers a journalism course called Indian communication arts. A recent class had 10 Aboriginal students, six white students and one Bangladeshi student, Rafique Bhuiyan, enrolled. During the radio training, Bhuiyan was sent out with an Aboriginal woman to ask questions about stereotyping. Here is his personal report.)

At First Nations University of Canada, in the Indian communication arts journalism course, many experienced professionals teach about journalism in the 21st century. Merelda Fiddler, a CBC producer and part-time professor of indigenous studies, asked if I would do street interviews for their radio show about stereotyping.

The questions were: What do you think about people of another race or culture and what should we do to not stereotype?

Hazel B., an Aboriginal, said, "I think we should look at each other as human beings, not by colour or race. I see many people who do have a problem with other people."

Triss W., a white woman, said, "I think we need to interact and engage with each other and seek to understand them. When we spend time with people and try to understand who they are, these assumptions don't hold. So, probably, the best thing we can do is to engage and communicate openly."

Abhilash M., an Indian, said, "Teachers and parents should teach children that we are all the same. You should not judge people by colour, race or religion. This should be done from the ground level, at school age. Kids learn at that age and kids will follow what we say to them at that age."

Tiffany M., from Ireland, said, "I think we're all the same. It does not matter what colour you are. We are all good people."

Classmate Nicole said, "Negative media attention is not helpful to positive social change." She said Aboriginal stories should be constructive and keep people informed. "And not only on National Aboriginal Day."

Argos backup QB building case to crack roster

Zach Collaros ran in one touchdown and threw for another to lead the Toronto Argonauts to a 24-20 victory over the Montreal Alouettes on Thursday in the final pre-season game for both teams.

Collaros, who's battling Trevor Harris for the Argos' backup position, clinched the win in a homecoming of sorts for the defending Grey Cup champions when he threw a 29-yard touchdown to Juaquin Iglesias at 12:29 in the fourth quarter in front of 6,204 fans at Varsity Stadium.

With CFL cut-down day looming on Saturday, Harris was 6-19 for 79 yards and a touchdown.

Ricky Ray, meanwhile, started for the Grey Cup champion Argos, but threw just three incomplete passes in his brief playing time.

Ousted in; Knighton not necessarily out

MLS. Whitecaps say highly touted Danish international will have to earn starter's spot

Rumours became reality on Thursday as the Vancouver Whitecaps signed veteran Danish goalkeeper David Ousted.

Pending receipt of his international transfer certificate, the former Danish Superliga star will be eligible to play in MLS on July 9.

"We just felt that if we didn't (sign him) in this window, he would go elsewhere," Whitecaps president Bob Lenarduzzi said. "We felt we were in a situation where it was important to lock him up."

Ousted's arrival in Vancouver was expected following several recent reports in Denmark.

Ousted, 28, played 10 seasons in Denmark, including four campaigns in the top-flight Superliga. He earned 35 clean sheets in 103 matches for Randers FC over the past three seasons while helping the club finish third in the 2012-13 Superliga and qualify for the UEFA Europa League.

The six-foot-three Roskilde native made 39 total appearances in the final season in his homeland, earning 14 clean sheets.

The Whitecaps pursued Ousted after Vancouver's goalkeeping coach Marius Rovde, a Norwegian who is tapped into the Scandinavian market, learned he was out of contract and available. Given Ousted's age, Lenarduzzi said, the club believes he can help in the short and long terms.

"He sets a very commanding presence," said Lenarduzzi, who has seen him only on video. "He's (about) six-four and is a good shot stopper. His size would suggest that he's quite comfortable coming for crosses in the box."

Ousted's acquisition raises questions about Brad Knighton's status as Vancouver's starting goalkeeper. But Lenarduzzi said Knighton, who sports a 3-1-1 record without a clean sheet, remains the club's starter for the time being.

"(Knighton) is the incumbent right now, and how he plays will determine when Ousted gets to start," Lenarduzzi said.

Ousted arrived in Vancouver on Thursday and will join his new teammates on the pitch on Monday. But Knighton, 28, who is in his second season with Vancouver, has a chance to retain his job for at least the next three games, between June 29 and July 7, until Ousted is eligible to play. The Whitecaps (6-5-4) had a habit of giving up leads earlier in the season, but have lost only one game with Knighton in net.

"(Ousted) needs to come in and earn a spot," said Lenarduzzi.

Knighton said recently that the starter's job is his to lose and welcomed the extra competition.

'keepers are keepers?

LeBron James had 37 points and 12 rebounds and the Miami Heat repeated as champions with a 95-88 victory over the San Antonio Spurs in Game 7 of the NBA Finals on Thursday night.

Dwyane Wade added 23 points and 10 rebounds and Shane Battier scored 18 points on 6-for-8 shooting from three-point range for Miami. James made 5 of 10 threes, all the while hounding Spurs star guard Tony Parker on defence to make the Heat the first back-to-back champs since the Lakers in 2009-10.

Tim Duncan had 24 points and 12 rebounds for the Spurs, who were trying to become the first road team to win a finals Game 7 since Washington in 1978. Kawhi Leonard added 19 points and 16 rebounds.

Mario Chalmers scored 14 for Miami.

Parker had 10 points on 3-for-12 shooting and four assists, and Manu Ginobili scored 18 points for the Spurs. San Antonio lost for the first time in five finals appearances.

The Spurs missed seven of their first 10 shots and turned the ball over five times in the first seven minutes of the fourth quarter, with the heartbreaking loss in Game 6 finally taking its toll. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Harris looks to lead Lions by example

CFL. Canadian running back hopes to fill B.C.'s backfield void

Some key players are gone from the BC Lions, but Andrew Harris will not forget them anytime soon.

Harris wants to be more of a leader — on and off the field — this CFL season as a result of the departures of star slotback Geroy Simon and others. But the Lions running back is keeping his goals to himself as he attempts to improve on a stellar 2012 campaign.

"At every level I've played at, no matter what sport I've been in, I've been a leader and a captain," said Harris. "Now that I'm accomplished at this level, I expect to be that leader and want to be that leader."

Harris can lead by example Friday night as the Lions host the Edmonton Eskimos in the final CFL pre-season game for both teams. After sitting out the first exhibition contest in Calgary, Harris will play into the third quarter as coach Mike Benevides attempts to get his veterans ready for the regular season.

"I'm sure I'll be playing quite a bit (Friday)," said Harris. "It's just good to get the rhythm, get the reps going.

Harris, once a longshot to make the team at any position, had plenty of touches and showed considerable improvement last season.

He helped the Lions finish in first place in the West Division with a 13-5 mark before being upset by the Calgary Stampeders in the Western final. He led the CFL in yards from scrimmage with 1,830, becoming the first Canadian to do so since Terry Evanshen back in 1967.

Harris also posted the sixth-best rushing total in CFL history by a Canadian, running for 1,112 yards en route to earning league and division all-star honours for the first time in his career. He also recorded 75 receptions that ranked sixth in the league.

But the Lions coach doesn't want Harris to place any high leadership expectations on himself. As his game matures, he must grow into a leadership role naturally even as the Lions attempt to replace leaders like Simon, who was traded to Saskatchewan, and Arland Bruce III, who was released and signed as a free agent with Montreal. All action, no talk

"It's not as a vocal leader, in the change room, but I feel that I'm a leader in my play."

BC Lions running back Andrew Harris explains how he plans to approach the new season.

Quarterback Travis Lulay, left, could be handing the ball off more to running back Andrew Harris this season as the Lions deal with the departures of Geroy Simon and Arland Bruce III. DARRYL DYCK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
It does not matter if you are qualified to do a certain job. What matters is that you give it a go. You may be surprised to find you are quite good at something you had convinced yourself you'd be bad at.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You may be baffled by some of the things that have gone on in recent weeks but now they are behind you, put them out of your mind.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
So you made an error of judgment. You are human like everyone else and make mistakes like everyone else. That you made that error means you at least had the guts to try something new.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You may not see eye-to-eye with someone but that does not mean you are destined to fall out. A lot depends on how willing you are to accept that what they do and say is just as valid as what you do and say.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You will change your opinion about something that only a few days ago you seemed so sure about. The problem is that nothing is static, not even your thoughts. Just accept it.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Something that a while back seemed next to impossible will soon look the easiest thing in the world. Remember: Nothing is set in stone. Nothing is made that cannot be undone and remade.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
You have made one concession too many and now you must put your foot down and let others know the free ride is over. You may not want to be aggressive about it but you must make it clear you mean business.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Your confidence is high now that the Sun is moving in your favour again but don't take foolish risks. Socially, you will be in demand and an invitation of some kind could even lead to a new business opportunity.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
It would appear someone is trying to pressure you into doing something you don't really care for. No matter how strongly they come at you, don't give in.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You won't be in the least bit shy about telling people what they should be doing today — and if they're smart they will listen to you and act on your recommendations. You can see more clearly than they can.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Your attitude towards an issue of some kind will change today. It may even be the opposite of how you thought about it before. In the middle somewhere lies the truth.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
If you are in need of inspiration you will get it, most likely from your imagination. Allow your mind to wander wherever it will. Don't try to hold it back. SALLY BROMPTON
